"AFTER THE CONQUEST, THE CROWN."

CLASS SONG OF '74.

Words by Jas. L. Lusk.

Music Selected.

In our mirthful days	And the captain's voice
We heard the strife afar,	That marshalled every star ;
We were young, we were gay,
Yet left home, long to stay
In preparing for life's march	With the toil of mind ;
'Gainst the Error and the Wrong,	And for this we have
By the conquest of self,	A pæan for our song :
After conquest, the crown ;
After conquest, the crown.

As our Leader's voice	And as Truth's bright sword
Does never sound retreat,	Has never known defeat,
We'll rejoice and sing praise,
As we close our school-days,
To encamp against each sin,	To the Great White Throne,
With our inner thoughts well manned,	Where the angels stand,
And the child's soul to point	With waving palms in hand ;
Singing thus, looking down:
After conquest, the crown.

Now to Cortland fair,	And to comrades dear,
Here in the quiet dell,	And patrons all, farewell.
Alma Mater, though we
Must now depart from thee,
Yet the link in Mem'ry's chain,	Bind our hearts to thine,
Glorious and from thy soul,	And our spirits lead
Will, in all coming time,	To that celestial goal,
Where the Great Teacher sounds :
After conquests, the crowns.
