CLASS SONG OF '75.

Words by Annie E. Freeland.

Music Selected.

As we leave you friends and teachers,
 Launching out upon the tide
 Of the great and unknown ocean,
 Hear our watchword ere we ride.
 Quiet bay and peaceful river
 Ne'er shall charm our barks aside ;
 Onward ever, hasting never,
 O'er the restless sea we'll glide.
 Billows high may rise before us,
 Lashed with stormy wind and rain,
 But we'll boldly press right forward,
 Mount their crests—ride on again.

Not without some help from Heaven,
 Can we hope to reach that shore
 Which beyond our earthly vision
 Binds the Now with Evermore.
 Prayer and faith for chart and compass,
 Cheering hope our beacon light,
 Passing all the shoals and quicksands,
 We may anchor safe at night,
 Ere we start upon this journey
 To "attempt" life's noblest ends,
 And "accomplish" what we strive for—
 Hear each say "God speed you, friends."
